

Breakfast Seminar: Oakley and the duty to give reasons

The Court of Appeal's judgment in Oakley v South Cambridgeshire DC [2017] EWCA Civ 71 marks an important new chapter in local planning authorities' duty to give reasons for granting permission. Its ramifications are wide-ranging, and its practical implications both for authorities and developers will be profound.

This informal breakfast seminar will include a discussion of the consequences of Oakley with Zack Simons, who successfully acted for Mrs Oakley.

It will include contributions from leading members of Landmark's planning team who acted in the key recent planning cases on reasons including CPRE v Dover and Hawks-worth Securities Plc v Peterborough City Council, and will be chaired by James Maurici QC.
